

THE RESIDENT 1966

This year book is dedicated to Mrs. C.E. Unwin who has been the director of mens residence for the past 11 years.

STEPHEN LEACOCK ONCE SAID:

"If I were founding a University, I would found first a smoking room; then when I had a little more money in hand I would found a dormitory; then after that, or more probably with it, a decent reading room and a library. After that, if I still had more money and I couldn't use it, I would hire a professor and get some textbooks."

The University of Manitoba allows the students who choose to live within the residence an amazing amount of self-government and control. They are allowed to elect their own officers; they are allowed to discipline their own members. They are encouraged to criticize and to contribute. They are encouraged to develop programmes and ideas that will better the conditions within the complex. The University becomes concerned only when it feels that property may be damaged or that the atmosphere generated in the residence is entirely detrimental to the common pursuit of education and enlightenment.

The University has given students the opportunity to create in the residence a government and social system that broadens the attitudes and experiences of everyone who comes to it. The University is also aware that a misguided residence could confuse eager minds and developing personalities. Every resident thus has a responsibility to keep his corner of the house functioning relatively smoothly, to seek new friendships, and to help create in a quiet way an "academic" community, for this is what a residence is.

The residents have contributed much in the last few years. They have worked hard to develop a more mature and responsible system of government. They have not perfected it, but progress in that direction is continuing. They have also gone outside their closed community. In the spring of 1965 the residence played a quiet but key role in the "Freeze the Fees" campaign. The residence was instrumental in establishing the Inter Residence Executive Association which eventually led to the long awaited seat on the UMSU Council. They worked hard to prompt the University into redeveloping Tache Hall. This year the University selected the architects. The work will go on.

These residences function well. The people who come here, who live here, become a vital part of the University. There is then a responsibility on the part of all the residents to find their place within the community and to contribute to it. The 800 students here can add greatly to the University. In the last few years we have begun and we must continue to find new roads, new interests, and new ways to contribute to a University that is shaking itself from a provincialism and conservatism into a vital force in the growth and development of this province and this country.

EDITORIAL

The Editor-in-Chief of "The Resident" would like to thank the many people who have helped prepare this book.

Its sole purpose is to serve as a pictorial record of this year's events. This we have tried to do in the limited amount of time we have had and the limited amount of material available.

I would especially like to thank Brenda Porter, Boda Vladowich, Sylvia Statkewich, Pam McLaughlin, Jerry Jessop and Bill Lowes!

ACTIVITIES

One of the chief features of a university career is residence life. In Mary Speechley and Tache Hall there lives a warm, fun-loving group of students who keep everything gay and lively in Residence.

There are many activities dispersed throughout the year, which highlight life in this "home away from home". Freshie Week commences the university year during which new friends are made, boy meets girl, and freshies stumble around looking lost in the wake of mighty seniors. Features of the week include exercises on the quadrangle in the a.m. and tray carrying in the cafeteria. For the first time this year, a Res. Freshie Queen was chosen in the person of cute Judy Smith, who was royally wine'd and dine'd as well as chauffeured in the Champs Rolls Royce. All rebellious freshies were dealt with accordingly at the Kangaroo Court capably handled by Jim Wray.

A very exclusive event occurred about October 31st. when Mary's girls joined Tache's illustrious members for a Halloween party in which all were suitably attired in weird and garish costumes. The traditional apple-ducking and drenching took place, complemented by dancing and food.

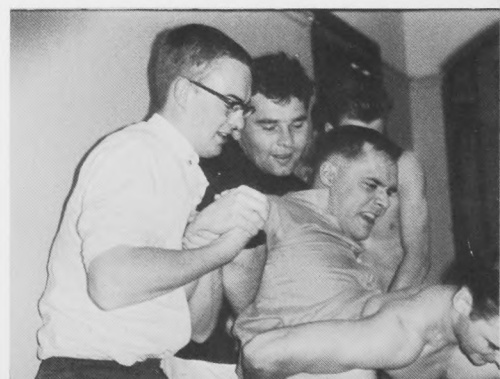

Jolly old St. Nick visited Residence this year and a merry Christmas party was the result. As well as dancing and lunch, Santa distributed gifts, among the most notable of which were a hair net for George Harrison and elevator shoes for Jim Wray.

Our annual Res. Variety Show was held in early December and proved a smashing success of talent and humour. The show was completed with the return of the distinguished Peter Buchan as M.C. Mary's Girls' candle parade was a glimmering highlight of the evening. A second Variety Show held early in second term was also highly enjoyable.

To brighten up frosty January a hockey game took place in which the guys from Mens' Res challenged the girls. The spirited and exciting was brought to a close with a sock hop which followed the game.

Color Night provided the last Res function of the year. It was a memorable occasion due to an excellent banquet and an interesting guest speaker. Awards were presented to deserving students for proficiency in Res. athletics.

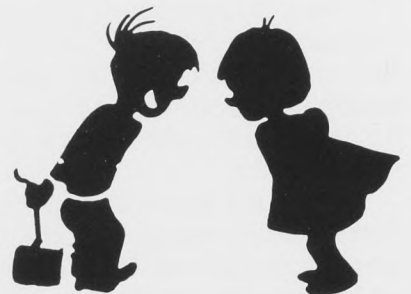

These events make our year in Residence constitute some of the best parts of our memories of university life.

SPORTS

Who else but a residence student could say at almost any time of night - "Let's get some guys and play volleyball!" and be able to do it? The resident can participate in all inter-faculty and intercollegiate sports, but in addition he has available everything which the residence sports program has to offer. This program is not limited to organized leagues and set times, but also include the informal soccer matches on the square, pick-up games in the gym, and after supper table tennis games.

A number of sports have residence leagues which any resident can join. Hockey, volleyball, and basketball are the mainstays of the program, but mixed badminton has had considerable success. For the first time this year, mixed badminton and basketball have been played on a schedule basis. The emn have found that this arrangement has brightened Tache West gym immensely and they look forward to seeing it continued. Hockey was not attended very well this year, because of an unfortunate playing time, but this may be remedied in future. The East-West hockey game in January aroused interest; West Tache defeated East Tache 7-4 in a blood-letting. Inter-residence rivalry was maintained by hockey and basketball games against University College. Badminton, table tennis and chess tournaments are held during the year for the men. The competitive sports in residence provide an opportunity for those who wish to play more than just interfaculty sports and those who do not choose to play outside residence.

The residence student has an appreciable advantage over the non-resident in the sports area, not only because he has facilities right in his own home but more important, because he has 800 fellow residents with similar interests and habits. If he feels like playing bridge or just throwing a baseball around, he has many friends available to join him. The non-organized sports in residence are perhaps the most important, part of the sports program, because they provide an outlet for the nervous energy any university student accumulates. When the pressures of assignments and term papers became almost unendurable, burning a little physical energy worked wonders. The men have even been known to get out the gloves and spar for a few rounds .... "Tennis, anyone?"

The sports and recreation program is an integral part of residence life. It builds friendships and strengthens character. It has attractions for almost everyone, whether it be good competition or just relaxation with friends, and generally makes residence a good place to live.
